The Real NHL Schedule: 2012-13

This document was compiled to show the real damage caused by the (irresponsible) 2012-13 NHL lockout.

It is a line-by-line comparison of the original 2012-13 season schedule as of the date of the lockout against the current NHL schedule as of January 19, 2013.

The numbers

- There were originally 1230 games, plus the All-Star Weekend in Columbus, scheduled for the 2012-13 season.
- 823 home dates were cancelled, plus the All-Star Weekend, both by the lockout and the rewritten schedule.
- That left 407 dates from the original schedule that still have games.
- To fill the schedule, the league added 313 new dates to build the new 720-game schedule.

The point of making it? 823 empty arena dates (mitigated, slightly, by 313 new ones). 823 crowds that didn't see a game. 823 dates where arena vendors, parking lots, and neighboring businesses didn't make any money (and not everyone who would have worked those 823 dates will work the 313 makeups).

It's meant to be a reminder of who really lost... everyone but the players and owners.

I expect to do another one in the mid-winter of 2021, because nobody learns anything in the NHL.

Note: Game times will probably still change .

Details on how to interpret this "schedule" are on page 2. The first game of the season is on page 24.

How to read the schedule

There is a massive overload of parentheses in this document, so let me explain using one typical game date. January 29 was supposed to be the day after the All-Star Break. Now, it's just another Tuesday…

Tuesday, January 29, 2013

CANCELLED: Chicago at Columbus

CANCELLED: Pittsburgh at NY Islanders

CANCELLED: Winnipeg at Carolina

CANCELLED: Dallas at Phoenix

CANCELLED: Colorado at Calgary

CANCELLED: San Jose at Vancouver

> These dates were cancelled. If that was the only day you could go to the home team's arena… well, you're a little person, and you don't count. Just get your refund and suck it up, bro…

New Jersey (was St Louis) at Boston, 7:00 PM (was 7:30 PM)

> The Bruins were originally going to host the Blues at 7:30… now they host the Devils at 7:00. Hope you weren't a Blues fan living in Boston. If you were… well, there's 2013-14, sunshine…
>
> When you see "(was another team)", this is how you can tell the date was kept but the visitor was changed. Time changes are indicated at the end of the line.

Philadelphia (was New Jersey) at NY Rangers, 7:00 PM

Toronto at Buffalo, 7:00 PM

Dallas (added) at Detroit, 7:30 PM

Florida at Tampa Bay, 7:30 PM

NY Islanders (added) at Pittsburgh, 7:30 PM

> Now this is just silly. The Islanders and Penguins were supposed to play on Long Island, instead they're flipped to play at Pittsburgh. Why?
>
> Anyway, "(added)" means this date was added to the home team's schedule after the lockout.

Washington at Ottawa, 7:30 PM

> And this… this is the Golden Snitch. The Holy Grail. The NHL actually deigned to give you the game you originally paid for on the original date and time. Wow. Congratulations. Just 155 of the original 1230 games survived the process… that's 1/8 of the original schedule. You're a 12%'er!

Winnipeg (was Edmonton) at Montréal, 7:30 PM

Columbus (was Philadelphia) at Minnesota, 8:00 PM

Anaheim (added) at San Jose, 10:30 PM
